

Financial Markets Daily

May 29, 2023

Main drivers for the financial markets today...

- Stock markets mixed, government bond yields down and USD biased higher. Optimism about a possible debt ceiling deal in the US, albeit somewhat cautious on a potential surge in Treasury issuance in case of an agreement, along with distortions due to low market liquidity
- In this respect, US markets will be closed today in remembrance of Memorial Day, with other European countries such as the UK, Switzerland, and Germany also closed on holidays. In Mexico, no relevant data slated for today
- It will be important to keep following the debt ceiling negotiations after President Biden and Speaker McCarthy informed that they reached a deal on the weekend. Nevertheless, it needs to be approved by Congress before June 5 to avoid a default
- In addition, market attention this week will be on May's nonfarm payrolls in the US, in which we anticipate 175k new jobs and the unemployment rate at 3.5%. Also, on May's PMI in China and IMEF indicators in Mexico, along with inflation in the Eurozone
- Monetary policy decisions include only Thailand. Nevertheless, also minutes from the ECB and Banxico, the release of the Beige Book by the Fed and speeches by several of its members, as well as from Christine Lagarde
- In US data, releases include housing prices (Mar), vehicle sales, ADP private employment, ISM manufacturing, and consumer confidence (May)
- Going to other regions, we highlight the unemployment rate (Apr), consumer confidence and in the economy (May) in the Eurozone; and industrial production, unemployment rate (Apr), 1Q23 GDP, and PMI manufacturing (May) in Brazil
- In Mexico, banking credit, public finance report and remittances (Apr), along with the Quarterly Report and private sector survey from Banxico

Equities

- The week kicks off with negative bias in certain indices, where hopes of reaching an agreement on the US debt ceiling prevail, but also latent risks from monetary tightening. In addition, trading volume is expected to be lower due to Memorial Day in the US, with markets closed also for public holidays in the UK, Switzerland, and Germany
- Europe trades mainly with losses, with the Eurostoxx down 0.2%, dragged by the financial sector. Asia closed with a positive bias, with the Nikkei rising 1.0%
- On the domestic front, CTAXTEL will start trading, while Alfa's price will adjust to reflect this. In turn, this week we anticipate a trading range for the Mexbol Index between 53,200 and 55,000 points

Sovereign fixed income, currencies and commodities

- US markets closed today due to Memorial Day, so liquidity will be low. The market is pricing-in a 25bps hike by Fed as soon as July. In Europe, sovereign bonds with a 10bps rally on average. Locally, Mbonos closed last week with losses of 8bps
- Dollar with few changes amid a mixed balance in DM currencies, limited by AUD (+0.3%) and NOK (-0.4%). In EM, the bias is negative with RUB (-1.2%) as the weakest. MXN is one of the few in positive territory, trading at 17.60 per dollar (+0.2%), after gaining 0.9% w/w
- Crude-oil futures starts the week with losses, halting two consecutive weeks of gains. Investors are awaiting OPEC+'s Ministerial Meeting on the weekend. In metals, the balance is positive with copper up after trading at a 6-month low

Even though this document offers a general criterion of investment, we urge readers to seek advice from their own Consultants or Financial Advisors, in order to consider whether any of the values mentioned in this report are in line with their investment goals, risk and financial position.

Determination of Target Prices

For the calculation of estimated target prices for securities, analysts use a combination of methodologies generally accepted among financial analysts, including, but not limited to, multiples analysis, discounted cash flows, sum-of-the-parts or any other method that could be applicable in each specific case according to the current regulation. No guarantee can be given that the target prices calculated for the securities will be achieved by the analysts of Grupo Financiero Banorte S.A.B. C.V, since this depends on a large number of various endogenous and exogenous factors that affect the performance of the issuing company, the environment in which it performs, along with the influence of trends of the stock market, in which it is listed. Moreover, the investor must consider that the price of the securities or instruments can fluctuate against their interest and cause the partial and even total loss of the invested capital.
