

Financial Markets Daily

Main drivers for the financial markets today...

- Stock markets lower, with government bond yields and USD up. Investors react to the last-minute deal by US Congress (on Saturday) to avoid a government shutdown, increasing their bets that the Fed could hike rates as soon as November
- In China, the PMI manufacturing and services indicators (Caixin) for September stood at 50.6pts and 50.2pts, in the same order. On the other hand, the Eurozone's unemployment rate in August reached 6.4%, marginally below the 6.5% of the previous month
- Today, September's ISM manufacturing in the US, comments from Powell and Williams of the Fed. In Mexico, remittances (Aug), Banxico's survey, and IMEF's PMI indicators for September
- Attention this week on September's nonfarm payrolls report in the US, in which we estimate 150k new jobs and the unemployment rate at 3.7% from 3.8%. This will be especially relevant given increased market volatility and fears about 'higher for longer' interest rates
- Monetary policy decisions in Australia, New Zealand, Poland, Peru, India, and Romania. Also, minutes in Colombia and speeches from ECB members, including Lagarde
- The rest of US data includes trade balance, consumer credit, factory orders (Aug), vehicle sales, ADP employment, and ISM services (Sep). In other regions, retail sales (Aug) in the Eurozone; and industrial production (Aug) in Brazil
- In Mexico, gross fixed investment, private consumption (Jul), consumer confidence (Sep), and the banking sector survey

Equities

- The week kicks off with negative movements, continuing with some caution as investors await signals of the Fed's upcoming moves
- US futures anticipate a slightly negative opening, with the S&P500 trading 0.1% below its theoretical value. Meanwhile, Europe trades mainly lower, with the Eurostoxx falling 0.2%, dragged by the material and utilities sectors. In turn, we recall that markets in China remain closed for a week due to a local holiday, but in Japan the Nikkei fell 0.3%
- In Mexico, we anticipate a trading range for the Mexbol Index this week between 50,300 and 52,300pts, after Friday's close at 50,875pts

Sovereign fixed income, currencies and commodities

- Negative balance in sovereign bonds. European 10-year rates increase 3bps on average, while the US Treasuries' curve records a sell-off of up to 7bps at the belly. Mbonos yields rose 10bps on average last week, with the 10-year benchmark closing at 9.87% (+8bps w/w)
- Dollar jumps against all DM and EM currencies after government shutdown averted. The USD/MXN trades at 17.51 (-0.5%), extending losses in the two previous weeks. We expect a weekly trading range between USD/MXN 17.25 and 17.75
- Crude-oil prices remain high, buoyed by widespread bets that global demand will continue to run ahead of supply. Both Brent and WTI rallied almost 30% in 3Q23, fully diluting losses seen in the first half of the year

Corporate Debt

- In October's first week, we expect the auction of four sustainability-linked bonds by Cemex -which returns to the market- and GAP, for an amount of MXN 10 billion. Moving forward, we expect dynamism in October and November, with a robust pipeline close to MXN 28 billion
- HR Ratings downgraded Total Play's rating to 'HR A' from 'HR A+' and changed the outlook to Negative from Stable. It also downgraded its international rating to 'HR BB- (G)' from 'HR BB (G)' with a Stable outlook. According to the agency, the downgrade is based on higher Capex investments observed during 2022, which were above the rating agency's projections and financed through short-term debt
