

Government securities exchange auction today

- The MoF will undertake an exchange transaction of government securities today from 12:30pm to 1:30pm (EST)
- The exchange will consider the following securities:
  - o Settlement bonds (securities delivered by bidders): Udibonos Nov'23, Dec'25, Nov'28, Nov'35, and Nov'40
  - o Target bond (securities received by bidders): Udibono Nov'43
- The settlement date will be on Monday, April 24th
- The total amount offered will be based on the bids received. The clean prices of the securities to be tendered by market participants will be unveiled at the beginning of the auction
- This operation favors the proper dynamics of the local debt market in Mexico, smooths the maturity profile, and strengthens liquidity. This transaction will be added to the placement of UDIS 1.7 billion in the new 20-year benchmark (Udibono Nov'43) carried out yesterday. During April, Udibonos have registered pressures of around 24bps throughout the curve, completely diluting gains accumulated in the previous month. Meanwhile, the short-end of the Mbonos' curve has recorded higher losses compared to the long-end. As a result, longer-term inflation breakevens have compressed more strongly, approaching 12-month lows. For example, the 20- and 30-year readings stand at 4.46% and 4.37%, respectively, both only 14bps above said metric. Despite this, we do not see enough value yet, so we continue to prefer nominal vs real rates
